

Diamond Solitaire Engagement Rings

by Richard Romando,

So, you're ready to pop the question? Getting engaged is a once in a life time occasion and you want everything to be perfect. The right atmosphere, romantic setting and of course the perfect ring are essential. The ring has to be special enough to sweep her off the feet, the same way you did while courting her. Nothing will impress her more than buying her a magnificent, dazzling diamond solitaire ring.

Engagement rings account for almost thirty percent of diamond jewelry sales. Out of these, the most popular is the classic solitaire ring. A solitaire diamond ring is a ring having a single diamond rather than a cluster of diamonds or side stones. Solitaire rings showcase the diamond's beauty. The band of a solitaire ring is generally made of platinum, a shining white metal that compliments the stone perfectly. The setting, which holds the stone securely, comes in a four prong and six-prong variety. The setting with four prongs shows off the diamond, while the six prong hold it more securely.

Solitaire diamond rings come in all sizes and shapes. From the regular round rock to the solid square, and rectangles, solitaire diamond rings can look as unique as your fiancée. It is sometimes better to purchase your diamond separately from the band and setting. This small step will ensure your purchasing good quality solitaire for your engagement ring.

Buying a diamond solitaire ring for your girlfriend is an expensive affair. If you are planning to surprise her, make sure the rock is something which she will cherish. Casually, ask her preference in jewelry, and talk to her friends. While purchasing your ring from the jeweler, ask him to provide a purity certificate and remember to discuss the exchange policy of the showroom. A classic solitaire diamond ring will definitely light up her face and your life.
