

The Next Best Thing To Real Jewelry

by Mitch Hampson,

Purchasing a diamond engagement ring can be one of the biggest expenses a young man will ever face. With tradition stating that he should be spending at least two months salary on a ring for his fiancée it can be more than many men can financially handle.

When a new couple are just beginning their lives together they regularly should be mindful of where their dollars are going. For those who require the beauty of a diamond without paying the price they should consider looking at these type of engagement rings.

Cubic zirconia rings are gorgeous. They closely resemble diamonds but are only a fraction of the cost.

It's possible to buy cubic zirconia engagement rings in many of the same settings as diamond engagement rings. You can even purchase stunning cubic zirconia engagement rings with a solitaire stone. The greatest part is that no one will know you aren't wearing a diamond.

When it's time to get engaged and you start thinking regarding the ring, realistically consider how much you can spend. Even though every groom wants to spend as much as he can on the ring of his bride's dreams it's not always possible.

It's important to consider what else you could be directing that money towards. Probably it's a down payment on a new home or a honeymoon. If the diamond engagement ring you have dreamt of is holding you back from fulfilling other dreams then seriously consider a cubic zirconia.

Like traditional diamond rings, cubic zirconia engagement rings can be purchased in either gold or silver settings. Although gold has long been the most popular choice, many brides are currently seeing the beauty and versatility of sterling silver.

If you have already browsed the cubic zirconia engagement rings at a few jewelry stores you might consider having one custom made. This can be a magnificent idea for a couple who is creative and has a particular vision in mind for their engagement and wedding rings.

When you do custom order an engagement ring you can have it designed in exactly the way you like. The stones can be the size of your choosing as well as the setting and the thickness of the band. Many couples decide to have the engagement ring and their wedding bands all custom designed at the same time.

Cubic zirconia engagement rings are an affordable and pleasing choice for today's couples. Remember that no one will ever know that the ring you are sporting is anything but a real genuine diamond.
